WEEKLY USA GRAIN AND PROTEIN REPORT March 15, 2025

Again this week, the market was all tariffs, tariffs and tariffs. Both the Trump tariffs and the reciprocal tariffs from exporters seem to change daily depending on what modifications can be negotiated. Tariffs are certainly very fluid --- up and down and back and forth.

US corn prices finished the very active week down by about USD 2 m/t while US soybeans dropped by close to USD 6 m/t and soymeal ended the week up by only USD 2 m/t or so. New crop US hard red winter wheat was up by about USD 7 m/t on the week with US spring wheat increasing by USD 4 m/t.

The weather looked quite good for the corn belt with some rainfall and seasonal temperatures but no one except the farmers were watching the weather as the tariff situation was just too exciting. The new EU reciprocal tariffs will certainly hit US corn and DDGS to Spain, Portugal and Ireland --- unless there is a change before they come in to effect.

Soybeans too will benefit from the good weather in the growing area but there is more concern about the 30 vessels of soybeans on the way to China ---- will the shipments all be imported or not as the tariffs start to bite. Will we see vessels of US soybeans looking for a new home? There was also some concern that China's new tariffs on USA meat could have an effect on domestic USA demand for soymeal --- according to one report, as much as USD 3 billion in export meat business could be affected.

Wheat prices, like everything else, moved up and down on tariff rumors, stories and announcements. The weather for winter wheat in the US looks ok – except for a major winter storm that will hit some wheat belt areas. Snow is not all that bad for winter wheat as it does provide protection from freezing.

Estimated Bulk Grain Freight in USD per m/t, basis heavy grains.

SECTION 2 --- FISHMEAL COMMENTS AND PRICES: PERUVIAN "INDICATION" FISHMEAL PRICES:

Fishing in the South Region of Peru has reached 152,300 m/t which should yield 34,000 m/t of fishmeal and 3,100 m/t of fishoil --- 98,700 m/t remains open on the current quota.

The export market is very quiet in Peru with no new business seen for the last week. There was a story that producers are looking for USD 1700 m/t for next season's super-prime fishmeal which would be up by another USD 50 m/t or more on the recent price list.

This week there seemed to be growing concern in Peru about a possible El Nino event that may or may not affect the next fishing season this may also have an effect on the current biomass readings being done by the IMARPE cruise.

Everyone seems to be just waiting to see what results come from the IMARPE cruise. No one wants to commit much more, either buying or selling, without a better idea of what the future supply will be.
