WEEKLY USA GRAIN AND PROTEIN REPORT March 29, 2025

New crop corn prices dropped by about USD 5 m/t this week while old crop corn prices moved higher by USD 5 m/t --- as usually happens as we come to the end of the old crop with an anticipation of a great new crop number.

US new crop soybeans were up by about USD 7 m/t with soymeal also up by USD 7 m/t.

US wheat had a tough week with winter wheat down by about USD 14 m/t and spring wheat down by close to USD 10 m/t.

Monday will see the USDA issue its Quarterly Stock Report with estimates that corn stocks will be lower than last year while soybeans are expected to be slightly above last year and wheat stocks are also expected to be a little higher. Of course, Monday is also the day for the USDA Prospective Plantings Report.

And, on top of all this April 02 is Trump Tariff Day unless some agreements can be reached that could change the application of tariffs. In the EU everyone has been working very hard to change the EU government's mind on the possible application of reciprocal tariffs on imports of US grains, oilseeds and proteins.

Exciting days ahead!!!!

Estimated Bulk Grain Freight in USD per m/t, basis heavy grains.

SECTION 2 --- FISHMEAL COMMENTS AND PRICES: PERUVIAN “INDICATION” FISHMEAL PRICES:

Fishing in the south of Peru has fallen off to only about 3,000 m/t with less than 15 vessels fishing. Total catch is now up to 168,000 m/t – 37,400 m/t fishmeal and 3,400 m/t fishoil.

The IMARPE summer cruise is chugging along as expected but is finding high levels of juvenile fish --- trade reports say that the spawning period seems to be slow this year possibly due to cold water temperatures.

Super Prime and Prime fishmeal prices seem to be a little higher this week and preseason sales are said to be getting close to 200,000 m/t of all grades.

The trade is still speculating about the size of the next North/Central quota and when fishing will start ... speculating is the primary activity these days.
