WEEKLY USA GRAIN AND PROTEIN REPORT December 13, 2025

USA corn prices finished the week down by about USD 2 m/t with soybeans slipping lower down by about USD 11 m/t with soymeal dropping by about USD 5 m/t. USA winter wheat moved lower by about USD 5 m/t with Us spring wheat almost unchanged for the week.

Corn prices slipped lower as the week ended, even good export sales couldn't keep prices steady. There has not been much news for corn that will move markets ---- all is finished pretty well for corn in the northern hemisphere with the next news on the world corn situation expected from South America. Expert say that corn will probably be in a narrow trading range for a bit.

Soybeans were weaker again this week even with quite good export sales. The market seems to be concerned about China's soybean buying and the large world supply of soybeans. If China doesn't buy as many soybeans as expected/committed then prices should continue week. Trade reports say that soymeal prices would have been even lower except for good new sales to Mexico.

US winter wheat prices moved lower on good supplies and, for now, good winter weather for the 2026 winter wheat crop. US wheat exports still look very good and competitive in a number of markets. US wheat exports could be up by 9% for 2025 overall.

SECTION 2 --- FISHMEAL COMMENTS AND PRICES: PERUVIAN “INDICATION” FISHMEAL PRICES:

North/Central catch in Peru was at 64,000 m/t this week bringing the total catch to 1.032 million m/t which leaves 598,000 m/t on the quota. Th number of vessels dropped from over 300 to around 200. Southern Peru fishing was at just over 10,000 m/t landed bringing the total of 66,800 m/t and the remaining quota to 184,200 m/t --- only about 10 vessels fishing.

The fishing industry in Peru seems very confident that the full North/Central quota will be landed --- this should set up a good year for fishmeal in 2026.

Estimated fishmeal sales are now up to 290,000 m/t showing about 60,000 m/t sold more than the production to date. Producers are said to be holding back on further sales until they have a little more fishmeal in hand.

There has been a little adjustment in Peru export prices between grades with Super Prime rallying while prices in China for the Super Prime grade also remain strong while other grades are showing slightly lower levels.
